WAR. IN EUROPE. FIRST SHOTS. IMPORTANT ACTION OPENS. RUSSIA STANDS BY SERVIA. TRIPLE ALLIANCE INVOLVED.

War has broken out between Austria and Serbia.

Servian soldiers, on a steamer on the Danube, exchanged shots with Austrian troops, and an engagement ensued.

There was no actual declaration of war, and Servia's position was not confirmed, being pointed out that a formal declaration was unlikely.

Since Servia's reply to the Austrian ultimatum on Saturday night, both sides proceeded steadily with preparations for war, Servia being particularly active.

The Servian Government was removed from Belgrade, and every precaution was taken to meet invasion.

None the less, there was a more hopeful feeling yesterday morning, following upon an interview between the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs and the Austrian Ambassador at St. Petersburg.

Russia has stated that in the event of Servia being invaded she cannot remain neutral, and troops were mobilized in anticipation of eventualities before war was absolutely certain.

Germany and Italy have both signalled their intention of being loyal to the Triple Alliance, which means that they will assist Austria should Russia intervene.

If Russia and Germany are involved, it is considered in some quarters that France will help against the Teutonic Powers.

The possibility of Britain joining forces with France and Russia has been discussed at St. Petersburg, but no indications exist of British intervention to act as far as possible as mediator.

The fact that Russia is suffering from a series of industrial upheavals, and the French army, according to recent reports, is short of equipment, is regarded as an important factor in the consideration of the influence of these three Powers at this juncture.

NO ACTUAL DECLARATION PLANS FOR WAR.

LONDON, July 27.

Early on Sunday afternoon it was stated that the Vienna correspondent of the "Daily Mail" had cabled that Austria had declared war against Serbia, and the statement was confirmed by "Reynold's Newspaper."

There was, however, no official confirmation.

In addition to the Uster trouble in Great Britain, the unpreparedness of France, and the labour troubles in Russia, the fact that Servia never subscribed to the Hague Convention makes it unlikely that there will be a formal declaration of war.

Austria is likely to aim at a sharp, decisive campaign in order to forestall Russian intervention, and to save expense, as the financial position of Austria is serious.

If the concentration of forces is completed within 10 days, resistance on Servia's part might be overcome in a month. It would be then possible to withdraw some of the troops, and send them to Galicia to repel an attack by Russia.

Russia has only 120,000 soldiers immediately available. It is expected that she will hold the Danube and Drina with weak forces, and delay the Austrian advance, while the main army is concentrated at Nish and Kragujevac.

Another force, with its base at Novibazar, will attack Bosnia.

LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE.

The Stock Exchange opened very weak to-day, Consols being down to 73.

ACTIVITY IN LONDON.

The rapidity with which the crisis developed demanded diplomatic action.

The greatest activity prevails in London. The King has cancelled his visit to Goodwood.

The Admiralty has ordered the first fleet, which is concentrated at Portland, not to disperse. The vessels of the second fleet will remain at Home ports.

Austria's action at this juncture is attributed to the recent death of M. de Hartwig, the Russian Minister at Belgrade, who was a vigorous pan-Slavist.

English newspapers consider that the ultimatum was unduly humiliating, though Austria was justified in demanding the suppression of anti-Austrian propaganda. Servia's reply shows that she is not unprepared to make reparations, and it is thought that Austria should exercise forbearance with the smaller Power.

Reuter's Agency states that the Austrian military preparations will give Servia time to reconsider her reply to the Austrian Note.

There was a more hopeful feeling in Paris and St. Petersburg, following a long interview between M. Sazonov, Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs, and the Austrian Ambassador.

SERVIA PREPARING.

EXODUS FROM BELGRADE.

BEIGRADE, July 27.

The Crown Prince has ordered a general mobilization.

The military have taken possession of the railways.

The Skupstina (Parliament) has been summoned to meet at Nish to-morrow.

The gold reserve has been transferred to Nish, and the contents of the magazines on the Danube and Drina have been moved to the interior.

A proclamation has been issued, advising the Servians to remain in their homes, and promising that the army will defend the country.

The citizens of Belgrade were occupied throughout the night in removing their valuables, and the roads are filled with carts piled with their belongings.

The disorderly element attempted to sack shops and dwellings, and the troops were forced to fire a volley to prevent pillaging.

SERVIAN GENERAL. ARREST AND RELEASE.

BUDAPEST, July 26.

Major-General Putnik, Chief of the Servian General Staff, with four companions, was arrested at Kelenföld railway station last night, after leaving Gleichenberg.

General Putnik was greatly surprised, and said he was not aware that a state of war existed, and strongly resisted his detention.

Eventually he was taken to the military headquarters.

It is believed that his companions, including his staff officers and Major Putnik, were accommodated at an hotel.

The military regulations provide for the detention of any officer of a hostile Power in the event of the imminence of war.

General Putnik was treated with every courtesy.

The Emperor Francis Joseph ordered his immediate liberation, after which General Putnik was sent by special train to Servia.

LONDON, July 27.

The Vienna correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" states that Major-General Putnik, who is staying at Gleichenberg, a watering place in Styria, when he received orders to return. The Austrian police entered the train, and the Austrian Legation, where they shout-land, which is regarded as occupying an offensive position in the destinies of Europe.

The "Chronicle" says: "Russia's intervention will be followed by that of Germany, which will result in the biggest upheaval since the time of Napoleon."

The "Chronicle" states that the only response worthy of Russia is an immediate mobilization of the army on the Austrian frontier, and an emphatic declaration that Servia will not stand alone.

BRITAIN AS MEDIATOR.

Sir William Goschen, British Ambassador in Berlin, has returned to Germany.

Austria has a right to insist, referring to the European crisis, said: "Let us all resolve that whatever dangers threaten Europe Great Britain shall from beginning to end play the part of mediator."

BELGIUM INTERESTED.

All plans have been completed for a general mobilization.

The newspaper "Soy" says: "Belgium is watching events, and will do her duty."

SERVIA'S REPLY.

PARIS, July 27.

Servia's reply to the Austrian Note accepted several of the demands of Austria regarding the dissolution of anti-Austrian societies in Servia, and the punishment of officials, but protests against the proposal for the establishment of a hostile Power in the event of the imminence of war.

Servia says she will finally appeal for the settlement of the dispute to be referred to the Hague International Tribunal.

The "Times" says the summary of the Servian reply suggests that Servia accepted all except two of the 12 clauses in Austria's Note. With regard to these two, Servia asked for further information or arbitration.

Slav students and other sympathizers with Servia made a demonstration on Sunday outside the Austrian Legation, where they shout-land, which is regarded as occupying an offensive position in the destinies of Europe.
